No cuts made in school board's balanced budget

MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The board of education should be able to balance its budget for 2001/2002 without having to reduce services.

It's even able to pull off this financial feat despite declining enrollment – and corresponding funding –, increased fuel costs and the enhancement of certain programs.

Last Tuesday night in Minden, trustees with the Trillium Lakelands District School Board were presented with a $145-million draft budget.

Although there are funding shortfalls in such areas as special education and transportation, there is enough funding through the province's new "flexibility" grant to make the budget balance.

Provincial funding is based on a per pupil model. Because there are 1.4% fewer students next year, the board will lose almost $2-million in student funding. (There will be a projected 112 fewer elementary students and 212 high school students. The latter is partly being attributed to a new Catholic high school under construction in Lindsay.)

However, the board gained about $3.5-million in other types of provincial funding. For instance, the province increased per student funding by $100 as part of the additional $360-million for education in the recent budget. That amounts to approximately $2-million more for Trillium Lakeland's 20,000 students.

As well, there's a new fund

Lutterworth and Snowdon ratepayers benefit from Minden Hills' budget

ERIK MARTENSSON
Staff Reporter

Minden Hills' new budget means some of the municipality's ratepayers are receiving a welcome surprise – a decrease in their property tax rate.

A comparison of 2001's rates with 2000's rates shows that while the residential ratepayers in Anson, Hindon and Minden will pay 0.5 per cent more than they did last year, ratepayers in Lutterworth will pay 3.35 per cent less while those in Snowdon will see a 1.76 per cent drop.

With the new tax rate, a residential property in Minden Hills assessed at $100,000 will pay $951.95 this year.

Last year, the taxes for a $100,000 property were as follows: $984.96 in Lutterworth, $969.03 in Snowdon and $947.21 in Anson, Hindon and Minden. The tax rate includes general municipal, county and education taxes – residents of the town of Minden Hills will pay additional taxes for their municipal water system.

Commercial tax rates are up 1.36 per cent in Anson, Hindon

Minister of Tourism arrives bearing cheques

MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

While local businesses which rely on tourism were happy to know the provincial Minister of Tourism was discovering the beauty of the Highlands on Friday, other community groups also welcomed his arrival – especially since Tim Hudak came bearing cheques totalling $49,500.

As the minister responsible for the $100-million Trillium Foundation, Hudak doled out three Trillium cheques during his visit to the Highlands.

In Minden, he gave $10,000 to the Minden Lawn Bowling Club to help with operational costs and membership drives.

In Haliburton, Hudak presented the Haliburton Curling Club with $22,000 to improve facilities. The Haliburton County

Development Corporation's visual arts committee received $17,500 for its new Glebe Park sculpture trail that will showcase the work of many artists and artisans in a natural and serene setting.

The Trillium Foundation gets its money from the province's gaming initiatives. There is a provincial board and also several regional boards which

Sportsmen - empty out those closets to help hatchery

Do you have any SPORTS RELATED ITEMS YOU COULD donate for a good cause, or would you be willing to donate a home baked goodie? The Haliburton Fish Hatchery is hosting a Sportsmen Closet Sale and bake sale on Sat., June 30 and it needs donated items for people to buy. Saleable items may be dropped off at the hatchery on County Road 1 south of Haliburton village and baked items may be dropped off on the 29th or morning of the 30th. For more information or to have items picked up, call the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association at 457-9664 or Glen Bird at 457-3777.

Meanwhile, the Haliburton Highlands Museum is looking for donations of books to sell at its summer book sale. Special interest magazines such as Beaver and Canadian Geographic are also welcomed and all can be dropped off at the museum, which is on Bayshore Acres Road off Hwy 118 north of Haliburton.

Have nothing to donate but your time? The Haliburton museum is also looking for volunteers to help plant and weed its many flower beds around the buildings. Call 457-2760 if you're interested.

The Minden Agricultural Society has finally attained its goal of getting charitable status. That means donations to the Society, which runs the Haliburton County Fair, can help reduce the income tax you pay.

There was a wrong date in last week's Harcourt Happenings. The End of the Year School Dance for children ages 7 to 16 is on June 29 at the Harcourt Community Centre from 8 to 11 p.m.. The cost is $3 per child.

The Federation of Ontario Naturalists and the Kawartha Field Naturalists will celebrate the expansion of the 956-acre Altberg Wildlife Sanctuary near Norland on June 10 at 2 p.m.. At Norland, turn east on County Road 45 for approximately 10 km. The property is on the south side of the road past a cleared farm area. news and events worth noting

We got a note from Diana Birrell, the daughter of Primrose and Bruce Birrell of Soyer's Lake and the aunt of young James Birrell of Peterborough. James is fighting a rare type of cancer and in a story a few weeks ago, we said that Diana's class had designed the website that talks about James and his family's efforts to raise funds for neuroblastoma research. However, the site, www.jamesbirrell.ca, was actually created by Inge Van Oostveen, an award-winning web designer in British Columbia. Meanwhile, James continues his battle, now determined to fight the cancer so he can take part - and win - the Peterborough Soap Box Derby in September. Syd Birrell writes: James has startled us during this last crisis by his fierce determination to keep fighting. We can do nothing less than help him with his fight and keep his dream alive. I thought that this week James really was not going to get better, and that my job was to help him understand that we have tried everything and it's now time to let go and die. What I didn't understand was that James already knew I thought that, and he didn't want me to help him prepare to die, and he didn't want my sympathy, he just wanted me to stand by him and fight the enemy."

The Kawartha Lakes Summer Playhouse opens its season with a gala evening of Broadway Musical Memories on June 16 at 8 p.m. at the Academy Theatre in Lindsay. Tickets are $15.50. Call 1-877-888-0038.

People who want to find out how they can prevent or control diabetes through their diet are invited to a Diabetes Food and Foot Afternoon at the Community Health Care Centre in Minden (above the emergency department.) Another focus will be proper home foot care with chiropodist Natasha Moshenko. There'll be snacks and prizes. The event, which starts at 2 p.m. on June 19, is sponsored by Moshenko and the Haliburton Highlands Diabetes Network.

Local organizations can apply to have the Sun-Rype Active Kid Challenge come to their event this summer. The Challenge is an interactive experience for children and parents, with a giant 50' inflatable obstacle course as the centre of activity. Complimentary Sun-Rype Blue Label Apple Juice and Fruit to Go snacks are also offered. It's available free of charge to events and activities that meet criteria. A positive influence

Friends and colleagues praise Ev Brown as she retires as director of education

ERIK MARTENSSON

Staff Reporter

Surrounded by a room full of colleagues, friends and family, Trillium Lakelands District School Board Director of Education Evelyn Brown bid farewell to her long and accomplished career last week at a retirement party in Haliburton.

In an evening that began with a town crier extolling the virtues of Brown, "Ev" as she is known, was congratulated on an education career extending back to 1969 when she started as a teacher to her final years working as the Director of Education for Trillium Lakelands.

In the ballroom packed with well wishers at the Delta Pinestone, a long line of people made their way to the microphone to thank and praise Brown for her endless efforts and dedicated years of service. Roasted for her take-charge attitude and propensity to drive fast and feed her colleagues, Brown was also praised for her enthusiasm and the care that she took to help the students that she worked for.

Student Trustee Jody Collins said she was sad to see such a "fabulous and great" woman retire.

"I've never, ever met a woman with a more vibrant personality and her positivity is really contagious. So from all the students in the Trillium Lakelands District School Board I wish you the best in retirement. Thank you for everything."

Although he was unable to attend, MPP Chris Hodgson also sent a note recognizing Brown's efforts.

"Over your 35 years as an educator your dedication and insight has had a profound influence on the quality of education in Ontario. As director your leadership and insight over the past four years stand as a testimony to your commitment for serving the people of this area."

"What a wonderful evening," said Brown when it was her turn at the microphone. "I am overwhelmed. I look around this room and I just see so many wonderful friends that have helped my career and guided me."

"It has been an absolutely wonderful profession and I've so blessed. So many in my life have offered me really good advice," added Brown thanking those that helped shape and mold her career.

The Liberal candidate in the recent provincial by-election in Parry Sound, Brown also thanked her family and husband, "who allowed me to do many, many things that I'm truly, truly grateful for".

Although she noted her appreciation of Hodgson and his help, Brown also took a moment to speak about what she believes is a threatened public education system under the Harris government.

"It wouldn't be fair in closing that I don't put on my political hat, I really feel that I must," said Brown. "Irrespective of your political stripe, I do believe in my heart that public education is on the chopping block and I encourage all of you to come forward and ensure that what we have continues and what we have will grow stronger. I would really not want the legacy that we're all leaving behind to be lost so please come forward and make your voices heard."

"And finally the noblest profession on this earth is teaching and I have been so blessed to be a part of it for the past 35 years and to have wonderful friends like yourselves come out tonight."

Aim high, retired astronaut tells high school students

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Reaching for the stars is easier than you think, says a retired American astronaut.

Col. Mike Mullane, who was inducted into the International Space Hall of Fame as a Mission Specialist after logging more than 356 hours of space flight in three space missions, spoke to a packed HHSS gymnasium last week about the importance of education to achieving dreams.

"You can't be a teacher, policeman, firefighter, doctor, lawyer, veterinarian and astronaut. It's not going to happen. They won't be saying it because you're white, black, male or female. They're going to say it because you don't have the education. You didn't stay in school, you didn't study, you didn't read, you didn't learn. End of dream," Mullane said.

"Thousands of young people in Canada and the United States are learning that sad fact. They're having a door slam in the face of their dream because when they were your age they didn't make education number one in their life and their dreams are over."

Four important ingredients to his success were: Do your best; set lofty goals; take care of your body; and make school number one.

"That's how I went from being a teenage boy dreaming about being an astronaut, to being an astronaut. That's how everybody does it, not just me, but everybody who has success in life. Your parents, your teachers - they've done it the same way. They may not have thought about it, but they've done it the same way. That's

"Thousands of young people are having a door slam in the face of their dream because they didn't make education number one."

how you can do it. You're the only person who can do these things."

In the opening minutes, Mullane illustrated his social inadequacies as a teenager by showing a near empty high school year book with only one signature, a varsity sports photo with him no where to be seen and the prom queen that he had nothing to do with. This self-portrait demonstrated to the audience how dreams can be attained by anyone with the desire to try - even him.

"I think it would be real neat to go into space. My dad is really into all this too. All the stars and everything. It's pretty neat," said HHSS Grade 11 student, Shona Malloy, adding Mullane makes reaching the stars a realistic goal for her.

"My grades aren't exactly the best and if he can do it, then I can."

Mullane has delivered his inspiring presentation to more than 300,000 children across North America. Through his web site, he has received emails about how his presentation has inspired other children all over North America.

"It was very interesting to hear from someone who isn't from the community," said Kira Fry, a Grade 11 student, adding that although she's heard the education message before, it resonated strongly this time. "He gives it again, but in a different way... [a story of] how he changed for the better."

DARREN LUM/Echo

Col. Mike Mullane's slide show illustrated his message that the responsibility of success lies with students.

Minden Hills' budget includes improvements to Main Street

& Minden, up 0.87 per cent in Lutterworth and up 0.06 per cent in Snowdon. A commercial property assessed at $100,000 will pay $2,521.01 this year in Minden Hills.

The lower tax rate for some of the municipality's residents is the result of what Reeve Ross Rigney called a "co-operative budget process" that was able to balance expenditures and revenues at just under $9.5 million, about $140,000 less than the combined budgets of the previous three municipalities last year.

"I think that we're being very responsible with this budget and it moves us ahead," said Rigney as council members approved the municipality's budget late last week. "We're going to achieve a lot of things this year."

While the budget was unanimously approved by all council members, Councillor Bill Obee argued the municipality could be more fiscally responsible if it raised the tax rate by one or two percent to help build the municipality's reserves. Obee reasoned it would be better to have a small yearly increase rather than burden taxpayers with an onerous larger tax rate surprise similar to ones introduced by other municipalities in the province and the County of Haliburton. This year the county raised the tax rate by 11 per cent in addition to taking out a $3 million dollar debenture (loan) to pay for roads and 9-1-1.

"I just think we should build up the reserves," said Obee, maintaining it was better to keep increases slow and even rather than having peaks. "I get really concerned about where we'll be next year."

Obee's arguments failed to sway the other councillors who were satisfied that the municipality is putting enough money away.

"If we didn't have any reserves then I could see it," said Councillor Ingram Wessell noting that with this year's contributions the municipality's reserves and reserve funds will surpass the $2 million mark.

"But one per cent is better than 0.5 per cent," countered Obee.

Although Councillor Peter Oyler stated he didn't

"necessarily disagree with what Councillor Obee is saying", he sided with Wessell and said he believes the municipality's reserves are in good condition. He added the municipality has been able to budget for projects that will improve Minden Hills.

"In my opinion in this budget there is a lot of money to do what we said we were going to do."

Rigney pointed out that in order to "bring some life into downtown Minden," the municipality will be spending $55,000 to purchase and install new streetlights and poles for Minden's Main Street. As well, the municipality is proceeding with a $3,000 traffic study on the Main Street bridge to determine what is needed to make the location safer.

A "Cost Efficiency Study" is also going to be completed to determine whether it is better for the municipality to keep the Lutterworth satellite office open or to renovate the main municipal office in Minden to provide the additional space needed due to amalgamation.

"We have money to spend on that office but we have to make sure that we're spending it wisely," noted Reeve Rigney.

The municipality is also paying off the $35,000 mortgage on the Snowdon municipal office.

In order to improve Minden Hills' waste management program, council has budgeted for the purchase of additional recycling bins and is going to hold a hazardous waste day later this summer. At the Ministry of Natural Resources' and the Ministry of Environment's suggestion the municipality is also purchasing the Little Gull landfill site and an attenuation zone from the province rather than leasing the property.

Over $1.5 million will be spent on the municipality's transportation services including roadway/sidewalk maintenance and construction. Business Park Road in Minden will be paved while Blairhampton Road and Church Road near Lochlin will receive new double-treatment road surfaces and Mistivale Trail in Lutterworth will get a surface treatment. New vehicles for the roads and fire departments have been included

The provincial competition of Think Bowl 2001, a problem solving competition for students, is being held at the Leslie Frost Centre on June 8.

The local competition was held on May 28 at the Delta Pinestone, and the Trillium Lakelands District School Board will be sending one junior and one intermediate team to the provincials.

JDHS won the honours to represent the board in the intermediate category. Team members are Max Creelman, Mallory Bishop, Gillian Ottley and Adam Perecko.

Leslie Frost school in Lindsay will be the board's representative in the junior category.

Students arrive at the Frost Centre on Thursday night. On Friday morning, they will compete in problem-solving events and in the afternoon will perform skits.

Think Bowl encourages students to develop their problem solving skills. As a team they are given a question concerning political, social, economic or environmental issues and have a day to brainstorm before they present their solutions to the larger audience.

Hawk Lake driveway leads to debate on severances, proper planning

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

The speed limit on Hawk Lake Road is being reduced to 50 km/hr for the first kilometre in off Hwy. 35 as a way of accommodating a new driveway entrance.

County council decided to take this route as a way of trying to ensure safety while allowing a property owner entrance to his property at the least cost.

But Algonquin Highlands Reeve Eleanor Harrison says a process should be put in place so that in the future, this sort of compromise can be avoided.

Several years ago, a property owner along the road received permission to sever his property into smaller lots. At no time during the process was he told that one of the lots did not meet the minimum road frontage to allow an entrance.

This lot was sold to someone who applied to the roads department for permission to put in a driveway. At this time, the new owner was told he'd have to spend approximately $20,000 to blast away a rocky outcropping that blocked the sightlines up the road. The property owner balked at the price, which is why the matter came up at county council.

The county's by-law states that on an 80 km/hr road such as the Hawk Lake Road, a driveway's sightlines must be 150 metres. This property's sightline is only 89 metres.

However, if the speed limit was reduced to 50 km/hr, the sightline requirement is 90 metres. As well, the Ministry of Transportation guidelines say that on properties of record (already existing properties) sightlines of 90 metres can be allowed.

But Roy Haig of the roads department argued that even if the speed were reduced, "it's an unsafe condition no matter how you look at it."

Reeve Harrison, however, felt that the county should have made that point years earlier when the severance was approved. She thinks that in the future the land division committee should ensure that proper and safe entrances can be accommodated in the new lots before permission is granted.

"It can be handled at the time of severance," Doug Ray of the roads department said. "Put the onus on the owner to come to the roads department (at that time)."

Ray noted that the department had turned down entrance requests from properties along the commercial area on County Road 1 because they do not meet sightline agreements.

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey said "The (sightline) rules have changed to make the roads safer. I have some sympathy (with the new landowner) but it's buyer beware."

He said the county wasn't refusing the entrance, simply demanding that the landowner pay for the work to make it safe. He compared this situation to one in Dysart where someone bought a lot only to discover it would cost $30,000 to put in a septic system because of the terrain.

Dysart Deputy-reeve Bill Davis said that if the county puts up a hidden driveway sign to offset its liability for approving the entrance, "you're putting signs up to cover poor planning... To me (having a proper sightline) is a condition and he didn't meet it."

"I believe it should be grandfathered in," said Minden Hills Deputy-reeve Jim McMahon.

In the end, county council did agree to lower the speed limit for the kilometre along Hawk Lake Road between Hwy. 35 and the new entranceway. It will also grant permission for the entranceway.

Echoing the tributes

THE ACCOLADES at last Thursday's farewell roast for Evelyn Brown were well deserved. As the first director of the newly amalgamated Trillium Lakelands District School Board, Brown has served this county and the region's students well.

Given the huge size of the new district, the amalgamation of the former Muskoka, Haliburton and Victoria school boards could have been a disaster. The new district still leaves a lot to be desired, given the recent board votes against the Highlands' best interest, but Brown has personally done a lot to mitigate many of the shortcomings. She's done that by being a visible presence in the Highlands, attending school events, even giving up part of her own Thanksgiving weekend to watch Haliburton Highlands Secondary School students receive their diplomas. There's no contractual obligation to do such things (as the Highlands is well aware, given that the previous director was noted more for his absence at school events than presence.) Instead, it was Brown's own choice to support the students in such a personal way.

School administrators also speak highly of her. She's been fair and wise counsel to principals and vice-principals, always listening to their concerns and prepared to act on them. At no time have local school administrators felt that their voice was lost just because Haliburton is the least populated of the three former boards.

And even though Brown wore her political stripes on her sleeve this past spring when she ran for the Liberals in the Parry Sound/Muskoka by-election, she is fair and balanced in her comments about education. She praises local Tory MPP Chris Hodgson when praise is due, and credits him with doing a lot for this riding's schools, but she'll criticize his government when she feels such criticisms are warranted, too. In other words, she tackles each issue separately, not stitching all her views with the same political cloth. The result is that those views are more respected.

A new director of education from Sudbury has been hired to replace her, and we can all hope that David Hill continues her legacy of being a visible presence in the Highlands. With only one trustee on the school board to voice the Highlands' point of view, this county needs reassurance that it is on Trillium Lakeland's radar screen. But more than that, it needs a director who, like Brown, knows the county's needs and is prepared to keep them in mind when making decisions that affect the Highlands so deeply.

Helipad update

In last week's editorial, it was said that in hindsight, the Haliburton Highlands Health Services board probably wishes it had included a new helipad at the upgraded Minden facility as part of its capital funding application to the province.

Hugh Nichol, who was chairman of the board during this critical time in the projects' history, phoned to say that at first, the helipad had been part of the overall budget. However, problems arose when the budget exceeded $20-million. It was felt the Ministry of Health would never support such a costly budget so certain items had to be trimmed. The helipad was one of them.

It was unfortunate that it wasn't included, but it was a necessary thing to do for the good of the entire project, says Nichol.

The HHHS must now raise approximately $100,000 to pay for the helipad. It is planning to get the money through the sale of the old Minden Hospital.

How to guide to wild edibles

AS THE OUTDOORSMAN of our family, I consider it my job to forage through the wilderness in search of edibles to keep the household fed. My wife has given me a carte blanche to hunt, fish, and gather. Of course, white paper with a fancy French name doesn't help much in any of these activities. So, just to be sure, on the other side there is a grocery list.

Yet even with list in hand, spring is a fine time to meander through the hardwoods in search of wild edibles. At least, that's what I imagine the biting insects would want you to think. Personally, I do it because I have to.

Such was the case on Sunday afternoon when Carol proclaimed that we needed wild leeks to make a leek and potato soup.

"What's wrong with just a simple potato soup?" I asked smugly, subtly appealing to her Irish heritage.

Her icy stare reminded me just how dangerous this hunting and gathering business can be. Up till then I never even knew her rolling pin doubled as a shillelagh.

I left quickly because although the word fear is not in my vocabulary, the terms dread and terror are.

And yet if you discount one ugly incident where I tried to gather fiddleheads at a step-dancing contest, I'm actually pretty good at living off the land.

I remember my greatest foray, where my meandering took me deep into the southern Ontario wilderness. Before long, I found myself in a field of wild corn, peaches and cream I believe. The stalks were six feet high and, by some freak of nature, they grew in the straightest rows you ever saw. I remember picking armfuls and going back several times for more. The funny thing is that people not nearly as self-sufficient as I were paying top dollar for practically the same stuff at a roadside vegetable stand not more than two hundred yard from my secret patch. All I had to do was take a walk in the bush and sneak under two page-wire fences. Of course, not everyone has my flair for locating wild plants.

And this is a good thing because any time you pick wild edibles you are taking a chance. For instance, right after I picked my third armful of that wild corn, a crazy fellow tried to run me down with a tractor.

This just goes to show how people get possessive of wild edibles. I suppose this is because gathering them is so addictive. Once, a friend of mine tried to quit picking blueberries. Unfortunately, he couldn't do it cold turkey and this nearly broke up his marriage. I mean a woman can only make so much pie. Knowing this, I called his wife this year to ask if he'd succeeded in quitting. She said, not yet, but at least he's on the patch.

Once, I was walking through the countryside when I came across a hardwood forest literally carpeted with wild leeks. Just then a woman approached and informed me that I was on her property. Not realizing that I had trespassed, I immediately offered an apology which she accepted just as quick.

I should have left well enough alone. Instead, thinking her a pleasant enough woman, I asked if she would mind letting me take a leek. Boy, who'd have thought anybody could be that greedy? There were more leeks there than anyone could have used in a lifetime and I just wanted one or two. I even told her that she could watch to ensure I didn't overdo it.

She chased me right off the property. Ever since then, I'm very careful about where I take a leek.

Screams in the night

YOU KNOW YOU have been working too hard when you start dreaming about your job, thought Dave anxiously. But the problem wasn't about his job. It was about his sleep. Not only was he taking his job home with him and into his dreams, causing an odd intermingling of his personal and business life; Dave's whole nocturnal world had become problematic.

Gone were the days, or should we say nights, when Dave could put his head down and within minutes be sound asleep. No longer those mornings where he awoke feeling refreshed and energetic even while the thick bonds of sleep were still receding. Now he knew that going to bed no longer necessarily meant going to sleep; that he might struggle for hours to reach a state of relaxation, enabling sleep to overtake his mind and body.

Dave tried bedtime rituals. He drank a variety of concoctions, various teas and warm milk. Hot baths, even aromatic oils and candles, were recommended and he had given those a shot. There were books he could take up before retiring, books to fill his thoughts with images of other lives, other places and therefore hopefully distract him from his own. Sometimes these strategies worked. Usually, however, they did not.

And so it would continue, Dave tossing in his bed in search of that comfortable position, both mentally and physically, that would allow him to sink into a deep and restful oblivion.

He was not alone in his night time restlessness. Dave shared his house with several cats and a small dog. The dog, which always slept on his bed, at first gave deep sighs of exasperation as Dave shifted his legs or arms, trying to induce sleep to take hold. Often, one or more of the cats also shared Dave's space. Every time he moved, it reminded Dave of how it used to feel when he was a youngster buried in sand at the beach and wanted to get out from under the warm weight. If he actually pulled himself right out of bed, there was much shifting and reorganizing required upon his return.

Always, there was at least one cat somewhere else in the house. He stopped letting them out at night, when his big gentle tabby never returned one morning.

Which lead to more problems for Dave in his quest for a good night's sleep. Just when he had finally nodded off, he might be nudged awake by a cat leaving his side with a thud to the floor. It had always amazed Dave how loudly a cat could move about his bedroom, when it wanted to. This was the cat's way of telling Dave it wanted to go out, no matter what Dave wanted. And so, feeling more wide awake with each passing second, Dave went through a bit of trickery in which he got up, moved toward his bedroom door as though going downstairs, so as to entice the cat out of the room, then quickly closing the door, thereby locking the cat out. Sometimes, the disgruntled animal would then scratch or rattle the door before finally giving up and retreating. Dave, back under sheets and blankets, would silently pray to return to his former, hard-won state of repose.

So it continued, with Dave managing, now and then, to enjoy a really good night's sleep. It was just enough to keep him from getting too fatigued, but he was not happy about it. Then, one night, Dave had fallen asleep after only a short battle. It was a shallow sleep, fitful and thin in which the rustling of leaves or creaking of plumbing managed to keep him on the edge of consciousness. Then, blissful oblivion as he plunged into a deep pool of slumber. Suddenly, he was startled awake by a terrible sound, a scream that sent him bolt upright in bed. As his mind cleared, he heard another, then another. Dave recognized it as the sound cat's make when they are either fighting or mating. It was incredibly loud so he knew whatever was happening, it was just outside his house. Had he inadvertently left one of his cats outside? Racing downstairs, with the dog barking at his heels, Dave was almost afraid to know what was causing these terrible, and continuing screams.

There, in the moonlit kitchen, sat one of his cats in front of the glass patio door. The ungodly sounds were coming from his cat inside and they were aimed at another, equally puffed up cat only inches away but on the other side of the glass. The two felines were eyeball to eyeball, unable to touch but deeply engaged in a screaming match. Once Dave's movements in the kitchen became noticeable, the outside interloper darted away. Dave could have sworn his cat looked disappointed at Dave's interruption.

Now fully awake, Dave did not even bother going back to bed. Instead, with a silent shrug, he plugged in the kettle for a cup of herbal tea. It was three in the morning. Pulling out some sheets of paper tucked in the kitchen drawer, Dave sat down and began to write. He wrote about anything and everything that came into his mind, beginning with the screaming cat. He had finally decided that if he couldn't keep his thoughts from churning around in his head, maybe it was time to give them someplace else to go. Forty-five minutes later, he was once again fast asleep, his dog at his side and the cats looking out at the first glow of dawn's light in the back garden.

Smokers must change their attitude

To the Editor:

Before locals start a tirade about the city folks taking over, I would like them to know that we have owned property here for over fifty years. I am part of the majority who is a non-smoker. My daughter has asthma and cannot tolerate smoke without having an asthma attack. She has the right to be free from exposure to toxic substances in government, public and retail places.

I expect leadership from the health board and our local government to provide us with a safe environment. Smoking in public places should never be allowed to protect weaken citizens such as my daughter.

Smokers must realize their pursuit of their addiction is inappropriate. No one should have to tolerate being exposed to toxic, harmful and life-threatening substances to obtain service. We ask why is our business section having problems. If owners of local stores show callous disregard for their customers by smoking, we will not support them.

Some businesses have responded to my request for a non-smoking environment. Keaney Chrysler and Minden Subaru are now non-smoking because we discussed this issue. In the last eight years our family has purchased six cars from these dealerships. The Brown Owl and the Chinese restaurant will seat us away from smoking so my daughter can eat out.

With a refusal to butt out I need to seek the health unit's support and our local council to drag other businesses kicking, screaming and smoke-free into the 20th century. This attitude reminds me of southern American towns. It is wrong. How do other citizens feel? It is an issue we can no longer ignore. Addicts do not have the right to make me participate in their addiction. Politicians need to have the courage to do the right thing now!

Outdoor students were inappropriately labelled

To the Editor:

We want to bring to the attention of the community an unintended mis-labelling that occurred in the "Outdoor Education...Highlands style" article that ran in the Echo on May 8, 2001.

While the Highlands Outdoor Education Program was originally focused on attracting students that were defined as "high risk" - students who may have difficulty graduating from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School in the standard time period - this inaugural year's students do not fit the school's definition of high risk.

The students in the program excel as tactile or practical learners and were never at risk of not graduating from HHSS.

Youthful talents showcased in high school performances

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

A bevy of young artistic talent was on display at the Northern Lights Pavilion on Friday night.

The first-ever Red and White Talent Night was held as a showcase of all the youthful — and not so youthful — talent the county has to offer. The event was organized by the high school's Red Hawk Theatre Company. All proceeds will go to a talent fund for future shows.

"This show gives the talented students of Haliburton County the opportunity to explore their (artistic) skills and we're investing in the future," said Technical Director Darrell Dobson.

The audience, mainly comprising of friends and family of the performers, were pleased with the performances.

"It's great. I thought it was wonderful," said Haliburton's Jannette Howe, who was watching her multi-talented daughter, Shannon Roadknight and Amelia Ambridge lip-synch Respect, that Aretha Franklin timeless classic.

DARREN LUM/Echo

The Walter Tose groupies are HHSS faculty Elke Zilla, Katherine Halas Moulton, Cindy Mitchell, glasses and Christy Chester. He regained his composure enough to perform a Pete Townsend song.

Tiffany. She video taped the entire show so father and grandparents, who weren't able to make it, could see it. "All that the kids have done and the effort they've put into it...This brings out the best in all the students."

Before Walter Tose came to the stage to perform a Pete Townsend song, HHSS teachers, a.k.a. Walt's groupies, Elke Zilla (also event organizer), Katherine Halas Moulton, Cindy Mitchell, and Christy Chester rushed to the stage accompanied by the raucous cheers of the audience. They serenaded him with the Shoop Shoop song. To the delight of the crowd, Tose joined his groupies and danced with each in turn.

"It's always exciting for (the students) to see us up there, no matter how bad we are. We're just trying to show we have school spirit," said Halas Moulton, a French/drama teacher. "It's great because there are so many students who I teach, and I didn't even know they had such amazing talents. You don't see that side of them (normally)."

Halas Moulton said the rest of the faculty is missing out on a great show. The students acted, sang, danced, and played musical instruments.

"There was a lot of talent here," said Miles Maughan, who came to watch his son, Reuben play the clarinet in the Crazy Eightz group.

Tiffany Howe and Scot Curry perform The Ledge, a "duologue" about two youths who meet while trying to kill themselves.

Old skill earns new fans during museum trip

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

There was a demonstration of the old ways using new equipment in the Glebe Park last week.

The Haliburton Highlands Weavers and Spinners had three of its members demonstrating their spinning skills using their contemporary looms and spinning wheels in the Haliburton Highlands Museum's pioneer buildings for the visiting Stuart Baker Elementary students on Wednesday afternoon.

Long-time association member Ted Carson was demonstrating how thread was spun with a top-like device before the spinning wheel. He has been spinning for more than 50 years and started during the post-war period when he was in his mid-20s. There was a societal need, he said, to "return to the earth" – a back to basics ideology. He based his career around it, teaching the techniques and then eventually starting a mail order business selling looms, spinning wheels, and numerous fibers.

When he first started teaching, people often remarked, "I thought you'd be this little old man." Now, I am that little old man," laughed a beaming Carson.

More than 1,500 years ago, sewing began in ancient China and after trading their textiles to Europe, their techniques were gradually dissected then adopted and made to conform to the European style. Nearing the end of the 1500s, the pioneer spinning wheel was developed. Devices like the Carders, two brush-like tools that are used together to pull the knots and impurities out of the material, readying it for spinning, were demonstrated by Carson.

Many children remarked "it was like touching a cloud" when Carson gave them a free sample.

Despite using modern equipment, the skill remains unchanged hundreds of years later. What continues is the reward earned from completing textile products on the machines.

The association performs these free demonstrations around the county upon request. With 30 members, the association currently meets Friday and Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at the Pritchard House in Minden or the Museum or the Gallery in Haliburton. But during the summer, they will meet Tuesday to Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 a.m. at the same location. Anyone interested in joining or learning this fine craft should call the Pritchard House, 286-3310.

Sediment spill next to high school a lesson for everyone

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

The chance of environmental disasters can be greatly reduced if more people acted like the faculty and students at HHSS.

Last week, the Ministry of Natural Resources was called to HHSS after teacher Dave Mowat saw a local contracting company deposit excess amounts of sediment into the creek beside the school that feeds Head Lake. The contractor was building a new culvert.

Steve Murray, an MNR Conservation Officer arrived at the high school Monday morning to investigate. Murray quickly assessed there were insufficient silt screens for the creek and ordered the placement of two to the one already in place.

"Any amount of sediment is a concern. But it wasn't thick enough to warrant Fisheries Act charges," Murray said.

Murray says there's little need for concern because the amount of the sediment that he saw has either been carried out to the lake or has settled to the bottom of the creek. The aquatic plants will eventually grow through it, he adds. Due to the many variables involved, he can't determine the exact time the creek will return to its previous state. The trash, Murray said, gathering around the creek was of equal concern.

Construction permits were not required because of the creek's size, but the contracting company still remains responsible, says Murray.

Gordon Scheffee, who co-ordinated the project for the contracting company, says they thought the silt screen they put in place was sufficient. However, it turns out that with the rushing water, there wasn't enough.

"Hindsight is always 20/20, but really the job should have been left until the water went down," Scheffee added.

The project, commissioned by the Trillium Lakelands District Board a week before the incident, was valued between $3,500 and $4,000. Scheffee adds the MNR will be notified for similar work in the future to avoid any potential problems and believes a company policy should be in place.

"Obviously everyone has been working around the high school and in the classrooms. They're quite concerned and rightly so. It's good to have people that are that keen on saving things. But it certainly wasn't the end of the world for Head Lake or that creek," Murray said.

HHSS students were alarmed when they first heard about the overflow of sediment.

"We're disappointed in general," said HHSS Environment Committee member Ryan Sisson and a concerned HHSS student, Michelle Fowler about the excess sediment deposit.

"We would have been happy to volunteer our time (to help with the project.) There was no need for this to happen," said Sisson.

Dave Mowat, head of science at HHSS says "The whole issue about this is timing. You don't do that kind of work when the minnows are breeding. The bass are coming close behind them. You wait 'til low water...Everybody is learning. It's all about learning. The adults are learning the kids are learning."

Murray echoed this sentiment adding, waiting would have been the best solution for this type of operation near the rushing creek water.

Graduation brings Fleming College grads together for one last time

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Endings are sometimes the beginnings to a moment that is very special.

As more than 100 friends and family watched SSFC graduates receive their diplomas, an artist's rendition of the future SSFC campus showed a picture of a new era.

More than 70 graduates in the Adventure Tourism Management, Ecotourism Management, Visual and Creative Arts Artist Blacksmith and the Drawing and Painting programs were honoured and given the last chance to see classmates possibly for the last time.

"It's great to see my classmates again. There were 17 of us, we called ourselves the 17 survivors because we were in a one year course compressed into three-and-a-half months," said Gayle Bates, a proud Painting and Drawing graduate. "Seeing other people's creative work was the one of the best parts for me — to see the creativity flow from their fingers."

This graduation not only marks the beginning of new careers, but of lives, particularly those of two graduates who will share the rest of their lives together as husband and wife.

Steve Truesdale had been working in the computer industry when he met Kristy Sadler at a wedding in Colorado. She told him she was about to start the eco-tourism course in Haliburton. Her description of the program excited him, he applied and eventually came to Canada for a new career and new life.

"What she was doing sounded like a lot more fun than what I was doing...I kept wanting to find a job that would allow me to spend time outside," Truesdale said.

They kept in touch throughout the summer and the relationship blossomed as they finished their schooling here. They are moving to Colorado together to get married next week. Truesdale, a Colorado native, is also the first international student for the college.

It's not only Truesdale who has a special place in Sadler's heart.

"It's great to have the year over. (My class and I are) going to miss everybody because we're a really close group. We definitely couldn't have gotten through the year without each other. Group work is key," said Sadler, winner of the Trish Wyman Award.

When comparing the eco-tourism course to her first two-years studying Travel Merchandising at another SSFC campus, she said "You don't have the same sense of community. The people here are great. The staff is incredible and you just become a big family. It's definitely a change from being with a 1,000 people to only with 35."

They eventually would like to run a canoe trip business together.

The convocation Master of Ceremonies, Professor Allen MacPherson, provided these lasting words to the 2001 graduates for their futures:

When comparing marks achieved on a test he said, "nothing is more important than the test of life. It will be tough, it will be demanding. It will challenge you day-to-day...aim high you have a great future ahead."

The efforts put forth by the students, from their countless hours of volunteer time in the community, to bringing a sense of fun and spirit to the campus will never be forgotten by the college faculty.

"You have given us more than you'll ever know," said a choked up MacPherson.

Hodgson's fundraising dinner a time of praise for community efforts process applications from community groups. Charitable and not-for-profit groups in the arts, culture, sports, recreation, environment and social services are eligible for grants.

Hudak also had the chance to talk to members of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce before and during a fundraising dinner at the Wigamog Inn on Friday night.

The dinner was hosted by Hodgson, his wife Marie and his Progressive Conservative riding association. Hodgson chose the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation as the beneficiary. More than 100 tickets at $100 each were sold.

The atmosphere was relaxed and jovial during the several speeches following the dinner and silent auction.

Foundation board member Ray Selbie praised Hodgson for his personal efforts in getting the new healthcare facilities in Minden and Haliburton built.

"Chris's work on behalf of this community is the most beneficial I've seen in the 30 years I've been here," Selbie said.

The healthcare facilities are much needed, he said, noting that there are 28,000 visits to the two emergency departments each year, 1,100 involved in community programs, 92 people in permanent residence in facilities and 200 staff people.

In less than four years, the Foundation has raised $4.3-million towards its $5.5-million share of the capital expenses and that money "is a credit to the community."

But Selbie and the Foundation look forward to the day the buildings are paid for and the Foundation can begin its work on improving the technology and care available at the new facilities. "The Foundation's job is just beginning..."

"We as individuals are called upon to be responsible for our community's wellbeing. Healthcare is the one thing that touches each and every one of us individually."

After Pat O'Reilly brought greetings from Kawartha Lakes, Haliburton County Warden Murray Fearrey welcomed Hudak to the Highlands. Fearrey said he wouldn't apologize for the rainy weather, however, since the Haliburton Home Show was underway and everyone knew that rainy days increased attendance.

Fearrey said "Chris is certainly a friend of this community and all of Ontario" and thanked him and Hudak for their visit, giving both some Highlands maple syrup.

John Beachli presented Hodgson with a stone carving. Beachli had created of two spawning Haliburton relic lake trout.

Hodgson was so impressed with the carving that he said more people should be able to see it. He's loaning it to the Haliburton Fish Hatchery (which he helped get funding for as the former Minister of Natural Resources) for public display.

In his comments, Hodgson said Fearrey is the most persuasive person he's ever met since it was Fearrey who persuaded Hodgson to go into municipal politics in 1991. Hodgson had three goals at the time - to lift the freeze on development in Haliburton village by expanding the sewage treatment plant and line, to expand the Haliburton campus of Sir Sandford Fleming College and to get the county the healthcare facilities it deserves.

Ten years later, through Hodgson's work as a cabinet minister and with the co-operation of local politicians and the college, those three goals are close to being accomplished. (The campus is in the early stages of construction.)

"It goes to show you what working together can accomplish," Hodgson said. "We can all win if we all work together."

He thanked the HHHS executive, board and staff for their work in providing healthcare services and the community for its dedication to raising the necessary funds.

Hudak smiled when trying to name the inn's setting "Kashawagga-wagga" Lake, saying he was glad to finally see the Highlands that Hodgson was always talking about.

"It's good to come to Haliburton, which has so much potential."

He also outlined some of the Tory government's accomplishments, especially the fact that for the first time in 100 years, the budget has been balanced for three years in a row. As an MPP, he said, "if I had half the impact Chris has had, I'd consider myself lucky."

Dale Walker, Foundation manager, wrapped up the evening by telling Hudak that "we welcome you any time - especially if you bring cheques."

Province's "flexibility" funding saves board from deficit

for remote and rural schools which takes into consideration the inefficiencies that arise when schools, such as those in Trillium Lakelands, are not in close proximity to each other or the board office.

Overall, the board will receive an additional $2-million in what the province calls "flexibility" funding.

While the increase is welcome, Director of Education Evelyn Brown says that the province's definition of flexibility does not match the board's.

"To the government the extra funding is flexible, to us it was necessary," she said. "We need it to cover costs. It's a welcome addition but it's not new money in the sense of extra money."

In introducing the budget, Brown said the board is able to retain last year's spending levels plus take into account the following initiatives:

- First Steps Programs to improve literacy
- maintaining a ratio of approximately 8:1 students to computers across the system
- improving the network to schools in the outlying geographic areas
- expanding the number of locations (including Haliburton) offering summer school opportunities

- increasing the budgeted number of Education Assistants

- addressing the cost pressures in the areas of utilities and anticipating the effect of hydro de-regulation expected in the spring of 2002

- anticipating increased fees for water/sewage through local municipal services to schools and buildings

- providing for increased fuel costs for transportation

- continued opportunities for leadership training

- and financial support for District School Council initiatives (including $2,000 to help pay for travel costs).

"It's a balanced budget built on a solid foundation of widely-held beliefs that places student learning needs as the core of our system needs," Brown said.

The draft budget is broken down in the following ways:

- Classroom teachers: $65.9-million

- supply teachers: $2.3-million

- E.A.s and para-professionals: $8.7-million

- texts and supplies: $5-million

- computers: $1.5-million

- library and guidance: $3-million

- staff development: $360,000

- prep time: $8.7-million

- principals and vice-principals: $6.4-million

- department heads: $292,000

- school secretaries: $3.2-million

- school operations: $13.9-million

- transportation: $11.4-million

- administration and governance: $4.5-million

- and continuing education/summer school: $229,000

The board last year received a one-time grant for special education accessibility; it's not being offered this year.

However, the board is getting

- $1.2-million for new pupil places

- $2.4-million for school renewal (which trustees feared wouldn't cover the potential of the need to replace aging schools)

- and $4.8-million for debt charges. (The province agreed to pick up debt charges prior to 1998; this includes the cost of the expansion of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, the construction of Stuart Baker Elementary School in Haliburton and the construction of a new school in Woodville. If the board had known the province was going to do this, trustee Doris Monaghan joked, the board should have gone on a building spree.)

Brown noted that although enrollment is down, there isn't always a corresponding decrease in costs.

For instance, even though there may be fewer students on a bus, the bus often has to travel the same distance to pick up children. "The children who are leaving the board aren't the ones at the end of the road," she said.

Trustees such as Bob Orr were critical of the "spin" the province was putting on its funding announcements.

He says that although the province is saying it's spending an additional $360-million, that simply covers the rate of inflation plus the .9% increase in student enrollment province-wide.

Trustee Rick Johnson said at a recent school board association meeting, it was suggested that in light of rising fuel costs board include budgets for snowsuits: snowsuits to keep children warm as they walk farther distances to buses; snowsuits to keep students warm in schools; and snowsuits as a potential school uniform.

In general, property taxpayers will pick up $60-million of the total budget while the province pays $85-million.

Budget meetings will continue throughout the month, but no more talks will be held in Haliburton County.

Man arrested in Dorset for armed robbery

The following are brief reports from the Haliburton Highlands OPP.

A 44-year-old man was arrested without incident on Dorset's main street on May 28 by members of the local detachment and the Central Region Street Crime Unit.

The man is suspected for his involvement in an armed robbery at the CIBC on Saint Clair Parkway, Lambton region, on November 30, 2000. He was on an outstanding warrant for armed robbery and was transported to Lambton OPP.

Drug charges

While on routine patrol, an officers noticed an 18-year-old male run to his vehicle at the Jug City parking lot in Minden. The officer approached the vehicle and subsequently discovered a pipe used for drugs, a quantity of marijuana and what are believed to be two Ecstasy pills.

The young man has been charged with two counts of possession of a controlled substance.

Break and enters

A shed and office at Harding Iron and Scrap Metal on Scotch Line Road in Minden was broken into. Suspect(s) took the keys from the office and attempted to start the tow truck without success. No items were taken.

Indoor Lawn Bowling off to rolling start

JIM HINDLE

Special to the Echo

The Minden Indoor Lawn Bowling Club has once again started another season utilizing the ice surface area of the Minden Curling Club. With the aid of a grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation and the advertisements in the newspapers, we are hoping to increase our membership substantially.

We wish to thank Minden Home Hardware and Tom Prentice for their help in transporting our carpets from our winter storage trailer to the curling club and thanks also to everyone who helped lay the carpets and transform the ice surface area into a bowling green.

Several new members were signed up at our "Open House" on the evening of May 17. Again, thanks are due to the club members who introduced the game to our new arrivals and to those who also supplied the refreshments.

Scheduled bowling started on Tuesday, May 21 but it is not too late to join up as there are still some empty places to fill in our schedule. Or you can sign up as a social member and fill in as a spare. Simply come out to our location in the Minden Curling Club just east of the fair grounds off Bobcaygeon Road, during bowling hours and any club member will be pleased to help you.

Lawn bowling is a fun game with enough skill required to make it competitive for all ages. Fun night on Friday evenings allows members to make up teams or to just practise and socialize. Come on out and try it. You'll like it!

League scores for the week of May 21 are as follows:

Tuesday, May 22

Morning: Katie Parker - 13, Joyce Hills - 6, Lorraine King - 9, Doris Ogley - 7; Evening: Irene Fuhr - 9, Howie Ryan - 8, Eleanor Young - 9, Katie Parker - 8.

Wednesday, May 23

Morning: Jim Hindle - 15, Laurel Tompkins - 5; Howie Ryan - 12, Joan MacKenzie - 8.

Thursday, May 24

Morning: Jim Hindle - 14, Katie Parker - 9, Laurel Tompkins - 14, Gala Heal - 5; Evening: Howie Ryan - 11, Eleanor Young - 6, Ross Farr - 11, Joyce Hills - 6.

Storm association strikes with 24 teams for OMHA

ANDY LENNOX

Special to the Echo

In the last executive meeting it was decided that the Highland Storm Minor Hockey Association will register a total of 24 teams with the OMHA for the upcoming 2001-2002 season. This includes a whopping eight teams registered for our brand new county league!

The breakdown of the 24 teams are as follows:

1 OMHA Juvenile team, 1 OMHA Midget, 1 AE Midget, 1 OMHA Bantam, 1 AE Bantam (may go to Tri-County if needed), 1 OMHA Pee wee, 1 AE Pee wee, 1 Tri-County Pee wee, 1 OMHA Atom, 1 AE Atom, 2 Tri-County Atom, 1 OMHA Novice, 2 Tri-County Novice, 1 Tri-County Tyke, 8 County League

We also want to announce that coaching applications are available now! They must be submitted to the HSMHA by July 1, 2001 to be considered for the 2001-2002 season. Apply now if you are interested in a Head Coach, Assistant Coach, Manager or Trainer position. Only Head Coaches will be selected by the executive. The other positions will be chosen by the head coaches but this is still the best time to throw your hat into the ring.

If you are concerned that you don't have the necessary training and qualifications - don't be! A full slate of training programs will be held in the area prior to the start of the season.

Coaching applications are now available at the CANGO gas station in Minden and the SHAMROCK gas station in Haliburton.

Remember the deadline is July 1!

Water levels exceed normal May levels

The large rainfall recorded recently has resulted in substantial hydrological changes throughout the region. The Kawarthas have received sufficient rain to increase the water within the lakes to slightly exceed the May normal. The flow in the Otonabee River has been increased to reduce the lakes' surplus, and boaters are being urged to use caution when navigating.

In Haliburton, the lake levels have recovered slightly, as a result of the rain, and storage is currently at 92.5% of the full level. Despite the extra rain, the flow on the Gull and Burnt Rivers is still significantly lower than average for the period. No excess water was released from Haliburton during the past week, and it is not anticipated that water will be drawn from the region over the coming week.

Annual inspection highlights cadets' dedication

Young men and women honoured for their hard work over past year

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

To you, we pass the torch...

At the close of the annual inspection of the 1129 Royal Canadian Army Cadet Corps, Reviewing Officer Billy Pickard told the 40 young women and men gathered in the Haliburton Curling Club that they are the future of Canada – and a very bright future at that.

"Your performance here today," said the former member of the Canadian Women Army Corps, "shows that we, the Canadian Armed Forces veterans, did not fight and die in vain, but that our country, Canada, will be left in good hands."

"You, the cadets of the 1129 Cadet Corps will ensure Canada stays strong..."

"I hope that none of you have to go through war as my generation did. However, we must be prepared to not only protect our country, to act as peacekeepers around the world."

The afternoon was an opportunity for the cadets to demonstrate all the skills they've learned over the past year, from marching in formation, drills, first aid and survival skills.

Whether their years in cadets leads to a career in the armed forces or not, Pickard said the skills learned will be helpful in any profession.

Captain Dan Collings praised the cadets for overseeing and orchestrating all aspects of the annual inspection.

"Thank you for giving me another excellent year," he told the cadets. "You are such a good crew."

To the audience of family and wellwishers, he said "if you value your future, thank a cadet."

He also noted that without the financial support of the Haliburton Legion, it would be impossible to offer the program.

The afternoon was also an opportunity to highlight special achievements of the last year. The following are special award recipients:

Best Male Recruit: Jeffrey Carrell

Best Female Recruit: Jennifer Walli

Best Jr. Male NCO: Ryan Mitchell

Best Jr. Female NCO: Meghan Hie

Best Sr. Male NCO: Morgan English

Best Sr. Female NCO: Cassie Hie

Minden Legion Awards: Ryan Mitchell

Commanding Officer's Award for Leadership: Travis Barton.

Two awards had special significance. Sgt. Major Joe Styles was presented with the Royal Canadian Legion Medal of Excellence in recognition of his community service and behaving in a way befitting the corps. Styles volunteers with many organizations, including the Bancroft Community Policing Committee, Cardiff Cadets and the Bancroft Village Theatre.

Within the corps, he helps bring out the best in the young cadets, Collings said.

Collings chose Second in Command Cassie Hie as this year's sole recipient of the Lord Strathcona Medal.

"She never needs to be told what to do, she just knows," Collings said, adding that she met all the criteria for such things as leadership, physical fitness, training, demeanor, goodwill and rapport.

Passport to safety helps students at HHSS

TARYN CLARKE

HHSS Co-op student

Last year in Ontario, eight youths died because of workplace-related injuries and many others were seriously hurt.

It is because of these numbers that the Greater Peterborough Safe Communities Coalition has put together a work place safety program designed specifically for youth, called Passport to Safety.

The students in the Career Studies class at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School earned their passports on May 1. As part of this training they learn how to recognize WHMIS, or Hazardous Material symbols, proper use of Personal Protective Equipment and the laws surrounding workplace safety.

Instructors Alan Wilson and Mary Jane Smith encourage students to always pay attention to their surroundings and to make sure that they learn about any safety hazards in their work place.

"It's not wrong to say, 'I don't know how to do this,'" assures Smith.

Although Ontario's young workers performed only 11.4% of the hours worked, they accounted for 16.5% of lost time workplace injury claims. They also tend to be 54% more likely to be injured per hour worked than workers older than 24.

Legally, employers have to train workers in safety procedures and have WHMIS symbols on all hazardous materials. Unfortunately, roughly 90% of employees do not receive the proper training.

Chemicals are not the only hazards. The most common injuries are burns, cuts, strains and sprains, most of which are preventable.

The Passport to Safety program is only in its fourth year, but it already has the support of 180 businesses which have agreed to hire students who have a Passport, over those who don't.

For more information you can contact the Program Coordinator by phoning (705) 748-9771, faxing (705) 743-2331 or emailing safecommunities@peterboroughinfo.com

County Council

Tender policy sets guidelines for advertising projects

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

The following are brief reports from the May meeting of county council.

Council passed its new by-law on tendering procedures.

Any project that costs between $2,000 and $10,000 needs three tenders in writing but the project does not need to be advertised under the county's new tender policy.

Projects which exceed $10,000 must be advertised.

There are certain exceptions to accommodate certain realities, such as a lack of businesses which provide a specific services and an agreement the county has with local surveyor Paul Wilson.

Wilson has long done work for the county at a discounted price. He is already very familiar with the benchmarks and county lands and the county has been happy with his work.

Taking this into consideration, county council agreed Wilson will continue to do surveying for the county but he must provide an estimate of the cost. However, if the surveying project exceeds $10,000, council will have the option of putting the job up for tender.

Farmers' markets

County council gave its support in principle to the development of farmers' markets but said municipalities will have many decisions to make before giving final permission.

Minden Hills Deputy-reeve Jim McMahon said he was all in favour of giving local producers an outlet for selling their agricultural products. However, he didn't want "entrepreneurs" to take trucks down to Toronto, buy produce and then sell it at farmers' markets in the county.

"We have to discourage the transient traders," he said.

Other councillors noted that some municipalities already have high fees for such people and that provides a level of protection to local producers.

Reeve Murray Fearrey also spoke against basing the concept on the farmers' market in Lindsay, as first suggested, because Lindsay allows the sale of crafts.

Strong osteoporosis education equals strong bones

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

The first-ever osteoporosis seminar in Haliburton offered information about recognizing and preventing this common aging ailment.

Sponsored by the Heart Connection, the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit held its second of a series of women's workshops in Haliburton providing information towards improving the over-all health and well-being of area women.

Guest speakers Lesley Ducette, a Registered Nurse representing the Osteoporosis society in Peterborough, and Barb Wright, a local physiotherapist, spoke to more than 30 women at the Delta Pinestone Thursday evening.

"There's a real interest for women in our community for information on health and it is our hope as a organization to provide opportunities for them," said event organizer Anne-Marie Cyr.

Almost a million and a half Canadians are afflicted with the disease. One in four women over the age of 50 will be affected by the disease while only one in eight men over the age of 50 will be affected.

"The more educated you can be the better prepared you are for yourself. You have to look after your body the best you can so the more knowledge you can gain the better you are," said Isabel Keefer, who was amazed at the amount of information learned.

Each woman paid a $5 fee and received a grab bag filled with health brochures and pamphlets, as well as an assortment of helpful health aids. The presentation provided invaluable information to the attentive crowd such as the three telltale signs of the onset of osteoporosis: a fracture, loss of height, and acute pain.

Osteoporosis is a disease that thins the skeletal bones mainly effecting the spinal column, wrist and hips. This thinning can go undetected until a fracture occurs.

Erin Fuzzen, a Western University health care student, who has a family history of osteoporosis sufferers, found the seminar helpful. She will be taking information to her parents and grandparents.

"It's something I really have to be careful of and I take exercise very seriously. It's a real important part of my life..."

"I learned a lot about the dosage of calcium supplements," said Fuzzen. "I think a lot of women here really got a lot of information and were able to ask questions that maybe they didn't get a chance to ask before. It was a great opportunity."

Many women don't consume enough calcium and become susceptible to the disease, says Ducette. The average daily calcium requirement for people aged 19 to 49 is 1,000 mg while women 50 and older require 1,200 to 1,500 mg. An eight ounce glass of milk is 300 mg.

DARREN LUM/ECHO

Over 50 women attended the first ever osteoporosis seminar held in Haliburton last week

For those who choose to use a calcium supplement, Ducette recommends reading the label for the amount of Elemental Calcium which is the true measurement of calcium for a supplement. She adds it is important to not exceed a dosage of 500 mg of calcium at one sitting since the body will discard excess calcium through urine. Leave two hours between dosages to allow the body to absorb the calcium.

"The best way to deal with osteoporosis is on the preventative side and I think we can do that by getting on the band wagon with exercise, nutrition and being aware of what's available out there," said Ducette.

Students happy extracurriculars expected to rebound at HHSS this coming fall

HHSS Co-op student

Whether it's football, the Flute Choir or the Redhawks Theatre Company, you'll find a lot more extracurricular activities at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School than you will at many other schools across Ontario.

One student, Graham Neave, summed it up nicely by saying, "The teachers care."

Even at HHSS, however, there are still fewer activities than there were a couple of years ago. Teachers across the province have cut back the number of activities they supervise as a form of protest against a bill which gave teachers less preparation time and busier schedules.

But now that the provincial government is willing to provide teachers with more time, a full complement of activities is expected for the next school year.

Extracurriculars are an important part of school life, providing students with structured activities and a place to socialize with their fellow students.

"The teachers know how much it means to the students, know there isn't a lot of other stuff to do," says teacher Stephen Woof. He tried to start a boys rugby team this year, despite being strongly against the new heavy workload. Unfortunately, not enough students were able to make it to practice to start the season.

Other teachers have kept extracurriculars alive at the high school because they get as much pleasure from them as the students do and would hate to see them disappear completely.

Some students say not having extracurriculars makes them less interested in coming to school and others, such as Kasia Siek and Katlyn Hewson, point out the health benefits that the sports provide.

"It makes us mad," says one student. She agrees with the recently scrapped section of Bill 74 which would have forced teachers to perform extracurricular activities.

The students are pleased that there will be more extracurriculars available next year and are hoping to see hockey, rugby and a boys soccer team.

St. Margaret's welcomes Archbishop to Sunday service

St. Margaret's Anglican Church, Wilberforce welcomed the Right Reverend Terence Finlay, Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical province of Ontario and the Diocesan Bishop of Toronto on Sunday, June 3, 2001.

At this 9 a.m. Service of Holy Eucharist a new Revised Standard Version Pulpit Bible was placed in memory of Mrs. Sylvia Cameron. Her daughter Jill Lee and granddaughter Tammy Lee were pleased to attend.

The Archbishop was very much a part of the service which was led by the Rev. Christopher Greaves, speaking first to the children and celebrating the Eucharist. He preached the sermon on this, the day of Pentecost, reminding the people of that first Pentecost when the disciples of Jesus were filled with the fire of the spirit, the surprise and joy on that real first day of the church.

Special music by a quartet of Elaine Wright, Marg Jeske, Stan Beard and Rev. Christopher Greaves led by organist Elsie Lewis welcomed the special guest. They sang "Pass It On" and "Walk With Me". The lessons were read by the Rev. Maggie Milne, and lay readers Carolyn Beard and Elsie Lewis. Nicholas Greaves was the crucifer. A short reception followed the service before the Archbishop, Christopher, Nicholas and Gerald hurried off to their next service at St. George's, Haliburton.

Colleen Riley called to let us know that the Wilberforce Cloggers were pleased to entertain the residents at the Long Term Care Unit at Haliburton on May 31. (Is the new name for that unit now Highland Woods?)

The cast of "Relative Strangers" and all of the Loop Troupe thank all their supporters - especially the audiences that attended the performances last Friday and Saturday evenings.

The chuckles, the laughs, the applause indicated that the show was appreciated. It takes a real team to "put on" a play. The team included director Flo Elliott, assistant director Marg Jeske, community news

wilberforce

Hilda Clark

stage manager, set and props person, Adele Barnes, lights and sound Dan Linkert, makeup Kathy Rogers and so many others working very hard.

The audience seemed to enjoy and appreciate the efforts of this amateur cast: Valerie French as Maggie Taylor, Hilda Clark as Joan Taylor (Maggie's mom) and Eugene DeCarlo as Jason Taylor (Maggie's son). Megan Foulds as Nancy Thompson (Jason's fiancé), Kim Barrett as Laura Thompson. (Nancy's mom) and Jim Saunders as teddy Thompson (Nancy's dad). And how did those names Harrison and Adamson get in there? Sorting out names and old romances were all part of the plot of this comedy.

The Troupe deserves a lot of credit this year adapting to the new stage at the Lloyd Watson. But we all are thankful that we have this building that allows so many events to take place.

The sympathy of many in the area go out to Colleen Ward and all the Ward family with the death of John (Jack) Ward. Jack died in Ottawa on May 28, 2001 after several months dealing with cancer.

Jack and Colleen have been permanent on Lake Loraine in Tory Hill after cottaging there for quite a number of years. Jack was active in the Community Police Association and the Monmouth Recreation Committee - especially helpful with Country Good Times Parade, even marshalling the parade as the rain fell last summer. Jack was the President of the Curling Club here for several terms. He and Colleen brought much energy and life to our small club. It has been very appreciated.

Much of Jack's life was spent in Lindsay and area. The funeral service was held on June 1 at the MacKey Funeral Home there. Lynn Watson, the Wilberforce/Gooderham United Church minister officiated. Interment was at the Little Britain United Cemetery. We are thankful for Jack's life and his contributions to life in this area.

Remember the Service of Music and Worship at the Wilberforce United Church Sun. June 10 at 11:30. A ladies trio "Close Enough" and the "Gentlemen of Song" will be there. Pot luck lunch after service.

A "Feast for the Ears" hopes to feed local generosity and spirit

People often think about making donations to food banks around Christmas, but the need is there all year round.

To encourage donations to the three local food banks, a group of local musicians are coming together for a night of good music and even better spirit of generosity.

Admission to Feast for the Ears on Sat., June 9 at the Carnarvon Bowling Centre is a donation of a non-perishable food item. By helping to make sure families in the Highlands have enough to eat, patrons will be treated to three performances.

The first is Dave Fougere, a talented folk singer and guitarist who will be performing his own work.

Next on stage are the Road Rattlers, led by Albert John Saxby. The band's original rockabilly music is sure to have everyone's toe tapping.

Rounding out the evening are Souled Out, a rock 'n' roll cover band featuring Mark Christiano (of Ya, Baby fame), Amanda Newell and Robert VanNood, Erik Litman and Dene Mottle (of the popular Rabid Dogs.)

The music starts at 8 p.m. and won't end until 11:30. Generosity is appreciated.

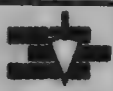

The Road Rattlers rockabilly style is sure to entertain at a Feast for the Ears

PATRICIA "DOROTHY" ELLEN WOOD
Dorothy, a resident of Highland Street, Haliburton, passed away at her home, suddenly and unexpectedly, in the early hours of Friday, March 16, 2001.
Dorothy was born in Haliburton, Oct. 5, 1931. She was the eldest daughter of Wm. Wallace Woods and Mildred S. Winn, who predeceased her, as did her younger sister Joyce. At the time of her passing she was survived by 3 brothers, Grenville of Minden, Wayne (Woody) and Douglas, both of Haliburton. Dorothy attended the Dysart school area board system schools at Victoria Street Elementary, and Lakeview High School. Dorothy had been unwell for the past two years and her health had further deteriorated this past winter. She was a life-long resident of the community except for a short stay in Oshawa at the time of her marriage to Wayne Bedford Wood on September 1, 1950. Dorothy had 3 daughters, Melinda Ellen O'Mara (April 15, 1952), Wendy Larayne Wood-Locke (April 1, 1957), and Nancy-Jeanne Roberts (January 3, 1963), all of whom she was very proud of, as well as 8 much loved grandchildren. Dorothy worked at a variety of jobs over the years, usually in the retail/restaurant/resort sectors, and most recently as the local ambulance and Fire Department Dispatcher. A 24 hour/day, 7 day/week job from her home, with occasional relief by her daughters, husband and a few off duty members of the local ambulance service. She retired in the fall of 1988. Dorothy was active in a variety of things over the years, knitting, sewing and quilting, in addition to the Figure Skating Club and Minor Hockey. An extremely talented seamstress, she
